Nov ander is this: If there are disloyal States in the Union, what are they doing there, and what do we want with them? The Union was formed to secure the liberties and strengthen ust been recognized by the powers of the mt of each. It was not formed to train if the ten Southern States are still disloyal after all the blood that was shed and all the sure that has been expended to make them loyal, they certainly do not atrenguen the Union or fortify the liberties of the other States and it was a bad job to force them to stay in when they wanted to go out.

This would seem to be the logicalword "loyal" in a sophistical and disingen conse. He knows that the ten Southern States that were in the rebellion, are as loyal to the Union now as any of their elster States, He broke noth at the relations knows that for three years they have proven their loyalty by quiet, humble automission to coverer tests than were ever applied to any other portion of the American people.
